

Employment opportunity

Research Analyst, Philadelphia

You are:

A recent graduate, with an analytical mind, excellent communications skills and a desire to work in the healthcare industry. You are comfortable with Microsoft Office and would like a job involving a wide variety of work in which every day is different. You must be a US citizen or legal resident able to work indefinitely in the US without sponsorship.

We are:

Research Partnership is one of the world's largest pharma market research and consulting agencies. We have a collaborative, friendly culture with an expert, highly ambitious team of client-facing researchers, consultants and project managers.

Your primary role

The graduate Research Analyst's primary role is to support teams managing primary market research projects for clients in the pharmaceutical, biotechnology and medical device industry.

In your first year your role will focus on project management and analysis; you will be working on multiple projects at a time. To ensure you receive a broad grounding in a range of market research techniques and methodologies, you will support teams on both quantitative and qualitative studies.

Working across both research disciplines, you will find no two days are the same. Responsibilities will range from content analysis of qualitative interviews to the charting of quantitative data in PowerPoint, as well as day-to-day project management responsibilities on international research studies.

You will also be responsible for liaising with our partner agencies to recruit respondents (e.g. doctors, nurses, patients) who agree to participate in our market research.

As a graduate, you will participate in a comprehensive training and development program and have the support of a mentor who will help you develop your careers.

Enjoy a successful and fulfilling career
with us

researchpartnership.com/join-us

London Lyon Singapore
New York Philadelphia San Francisco

Employment opportunity

Research Analyst, Philadelphia

As you progress further into your career with us, you will gain more responsibility for material design, report writing, presenting and overseeing an internal team. With the majority of our 250+ annual projects conducted in multiple countries you will get the chance to research markets across the globe and have the opportunity to travel.

A couple more things

As a result of the COVID pandemic, we are currently operating in a hybrid model (working some days in office and some days remote).

You can get lots more information about our graduate program online. We offer formal as well as on-the-job training, competitive salaries, and opportunities for internal advancement, health benefits, and a 401K plan with company contributions. If you have the drive and dedication, the sky's the limit!

To explore the role and company more, please use the following link to our website:

www.researchpartnership.com/us-research-graduate-programme

What's next?

Interested candidates should apply online through the link. Applications will be accepted on a rolling basis. Please note that in order to be considered for this role you must complete the application and submit your resume/CV to the email address below:

recruitment@researchpartnership.com

Requirements:

- Bachelor's degree or above
- Interest in healthcare
- Basic understanding of what market research is
- Comfortable using Microsoft Office (Word, Excel, PowerPoint)
- Attention to detail
- Drive and enthusiasm
- Clear and articulate communication skills
- Ability to work well in a team environment

researchpartnership.com/join-us

London Lyon Singapore
New York Philadelphia San Francisco
